

Texas Higher Education COORDINATING BOARD

Important: ApplyTexas Update

Dear colleagues,

We want to again extend our gratitude to your teams for their time and commitment to testing the new ApplyTexas.

This week our team has reviewed all issues surfaced through testing, including those for which you have submitted tickets. We worked directly with a subset of institutions to identify solutions and have made significant progress remediating issues. We will continue to test with a pilot group of institutions before reinitiating testing for all. As a reminder, if you submitted a ticket, no further action is needed at this time.

Next steps and reminders:

- We will conduct another round of testing for all institutions. We will reach out as we have more information.
- We are bringing on additional resources to streamline communication and directly support individual institutions as needed. These resources will support the next testing cycle and cutover.
- UT Austin maintains the current version of ApplyTexas and only accepts tickets for support of the current live version, not the testing or implementation of the new ApplyTexas.

- Please direct all of your questions regarding the ApplyTexas cutover to applytexasapplication@highered.texas.gov.

We appreciate your continued partnership and are committed to ensuring ApplyTexas is an optimal application experience for students and institutions.

Respectfully,
Laura Brennan
