Higher Education Regional Councils

Higher Education Regional Councils have oversight over many, but not all, off-campus lower-division courses and programs offered by community colleges, universities, health-related institutions, public technical colleges, and Lamar State Colleges in Texas.

Higher Education Regional Councils

There are ten Higher Education Regional Councils in Texas that consist of the universities, community colleges, technical colleges, and Lamar State Colleges within that region.

Higher Education Regional Councils

- The membership of each Regional Council is comprised of presidents or designated representatives of each participating public and independent institution within the region.
- A Council Chair is elected by the members.
- The term of service for the Council Chair is also determined by the members.
- Regional Councils are expected to meet annually each spring to perform their designated duties.
- Any business that arises during other times of the year may be conducted electronically at the discretion of the Council Chair.
- It is the responsibility of the Chair to inform members of the region of the date, time, and location of the spring council meeting.

Responsibilities of HERC

- Reviewing the proposed off-campus, lower-division course and program offerings of each member public institution as presented in their Off-Campus Instruction Plans.
- Resolving any disputes associated with the proposed off-campus, lower-division course offerings, excluding dual credit.
- Studying cooperatively the various methods of providing lower-division, off-campus instruction, and promoting the use of those methods which support quality and promise the most effective and efficient use of state resources.

Off-Campus Instruction Plan

An Off-Campus Instruction Plan must be submitted to the Regional Council by each public institution of higher education that is planning to offer off-campus, lower-division courses, clinicals, and/or programs in that region.
