Texas is making progress toward the the 60x30:Educated Population Goal

- Texas will need to increase the percent of the population with a postsecondary credential by 1.3 percentage points a year to reach 60% by 2030.

Completions are growing, but Texas needs to accelerate pace

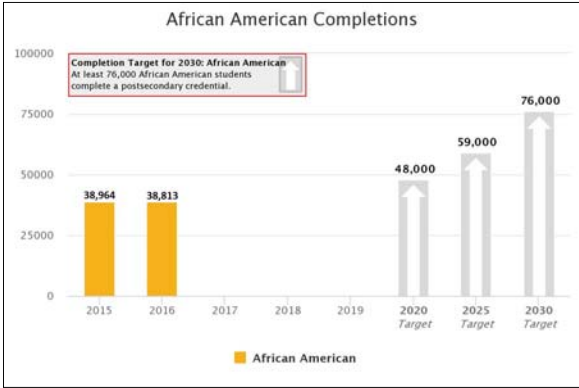

- Associate degree completions had the greatest increases between 2015 and 2016.

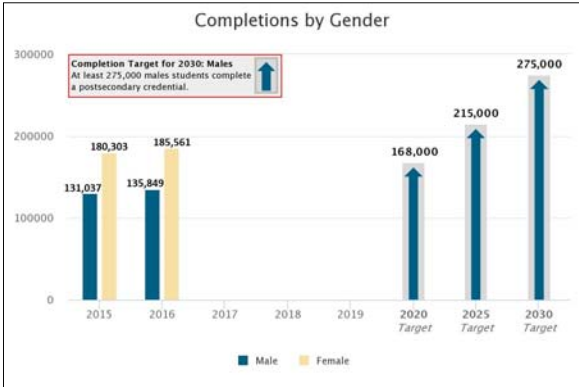

Completions by Hispanic students have increased, but more growth is needed

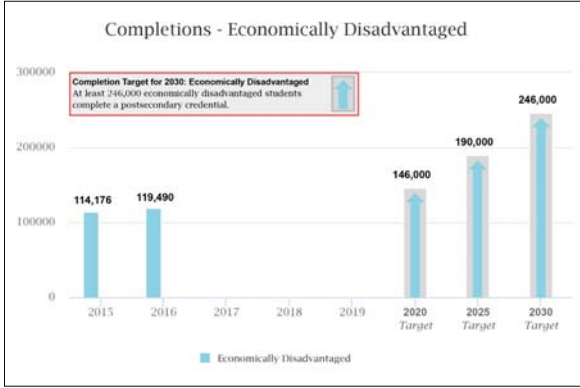

Completions by African American students are down from 2015

Both males and females are adding degrees; more focus on male completion is needed

Completions by economically disadvantaged students must accelerate

Texas needs to increase % of public high school grads that enroll directly in higher education

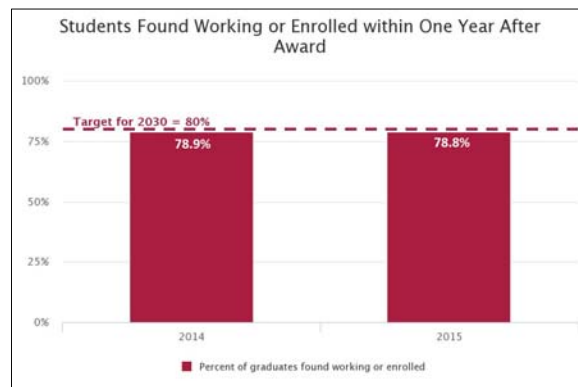

- Enrollment decreased between FY 2015 and FY 2016 in all demographic categories, suggesting systemic issues, such as low unemployment, may be driving change

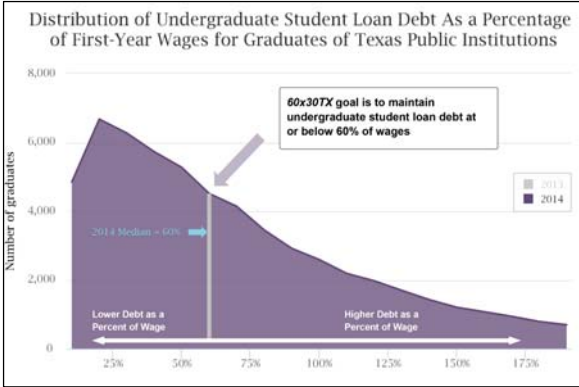

Institutional comments on marketable skills highlight pockets of activity

- Engaging Career Services – THECB has reached out to career service professionals.
- Texas Council of Chief Academic Officers (TCCAO) to convene faculty from similar disciplines to create lists of marketable skills.
- Texas Council of Chief Student Affairs Officers (TCCSAO) has developed a common framework of marketable skills that creates crosswalk between core objectives and in-demand skills sought by employers.
- THECB hosted Marketable Skills Conference to collect institutions’ suggestions for achieving marketable skills goal.

The percent of graduates working or enrolled following graduation is stable

Debt levels in relation to first-year wages are at levels prescribed by plan

- Many students are well below the 60% goal

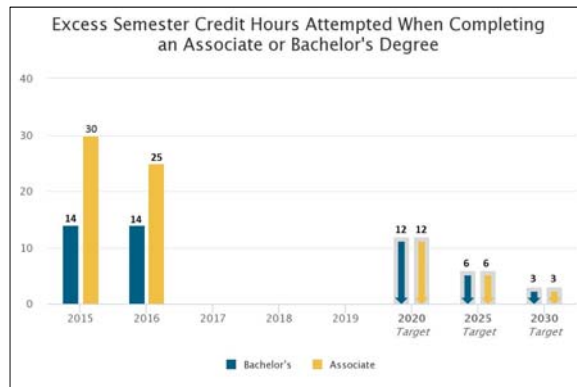

The percent of students that graduate with any debt has decreased

- The percent of students who graduate with any debt has decreased from 49.1% in FY 2015 to 48.2% in FY 2016.

The number of excess semester credit hours attempted while completing a degree is dropping at the associate level

Overall, Texas is doing well on its 60x30TX Goals and Targets . . .
